SEMINAR OF CHIROPRACTIC TEACHING GONSTEAD DISC CONCEPT

an ANSWER for every Question

Chiropractic is an exact science.

You do not have to take somebody's word for it that there is such a thing as a subluxation, or that a nerve can be pinched, or that a disc can swell, or, for that matter, that a vertebra moves.

You do not have to accept chiropractic without scientific proof.

There is a sound Anatomical, Physiological explanation for every aspect of Chiropractic. There is an answer to every Why.

At the Gonstead Seminars, chiropractors and chiropractic students are finding answers—answers they couldn't find anywhere else. For the first time, these doctors are really understanding what they are doing, and why.

In conjunction with the Palmer College Division of Graduate Education the Gonstead Seminar is presenting special license renewal lab courses during the day prior to Mt. Horeb Seminars. Send for details.

Catalog of equipment and supplies available. Leasing opportunities with special "new practice plan."

Questions such as what happens to a subluxated vertebra, how does a vertebra move, how does it affect the disc below, how does it affect the vertebra above and below, why is it not our aim to "straighten" spines, why is a lateral film imperative, how can a fractured vertebra be set, why heel lifts can be detrimental if not used correctly, why ankylosing appears at the compensation and not at the subluxation, why the most grossly misaligned vertebra on the film is not the subluxation.

The list goes on. And so does the list of chiropractors turning on to the answers in chiropractic. Today's chiropractors want answers—and answers are what they get at Gonstead Seminars.

Make it your business to find out why.
